THE SPECTATOR

Alf Delmont Came to U. S. To Fight and Slay Indians

as to where he might sleep for the night. He awoke in the morning with a badly inflated face as the result of his first experience with American mosquitoes. Then before breakfast he became part of a scene where 365 horses were burned to death in a street-car barn. All this within 24 hours after his advent in a strange land.
Before the day was over he met a man from Providence, R. I. The man said Providence was a good town. Alf took his word for it and went there with him. Small jobs followed, but none of them had to do with dogs. One connection was with an evangelist, $20 per month to sing in a quartet, pass the plate and distribute the tracts. The dogs were coming closer. They arrived with the next employer, Mr. Coates, the thread tycoon, whose wife had some fancy pups and who liked to exhibit them around the nation, with Alf at her heels to show them right. That started it. He has been at it ever since, with trips across the seas in constant quest of the world's best dogs and a never-ending schooling in what it is that makes one dog excel another.
Thus has come to pass the top-post of American dogdom, with Alf Delmont's word respected as the one to accept, nor ever contested so far as is known except in one case. That was when he was challenged by a young lady named Lida Patton, whose "Little Billy", a $450 Pomeranian, had been rejected by Alf as not being the best of its class as its owner claimed. The burly stranger, said Lady Lida, knew nothing about dogs and had no right to act as judge. In fact, he had a con-summate nerve to so presume. Apparently, however, something occurred to change her mind, as it was not long after when she married him.
To break a woman's heart by ruthlessly depriving her of the blue ribbon she so fondly craved, and to later lead her to the altar, would seem to show the man has a way about him, and it's a way that the lady can tell a great deal about.
ALF DELMONT has had his Leeds Kennels in Narberth for 34 years. Previous to that they were in Devon, a sum-total of 45 years on the Main Line. He has bought and sold thousands of quality dogs in his career. His patrons (what a list!) order from him knowing they will get exactly what they seek or no delivery. Some real prices are often paid, as much as $3500 for an English Setter. Robert E. Strawbridge paid $2750 for a wire-haired. Most of them, of course, are sold for less, between $100 and $500.

Exhaust Fumes Overcome Driver

Overcome by carbon monoxide gas as a result of an unusual accident, Clarence Turner, 30, of 82 Price St., West Manayunk, was taken to Montgomery Hospital for emergency oxygen treatment last Wednesday.
Turner was driver of a truck sent to tow a bus that had broken down in front of Montgomery Hospital. As he was towing the bus, South on Swede St., a chain slipped.
Turner left the motor of the truck on as he went to fix the chain.
In a short while, fumes from the exhaust caused him to collapse. He was revived before the arrival of the ambulance.

Town Talk

than one committee. As a result there was naturally much jockeying for position on the important committees, of which the Labor Committee was just about the most important.
But Mr. McConnell was appointed to the Committee without so much as an aye, yes or no, which shows that he must have done a pretty fine job during his past two years on the Committee.

Shortly after inspecting the modern New House Building where Mr. McConnell has a two-room suite with two windows in the inner office, proving his seniority, because of offices connote that status as well as Committee positions, and the Old House Building where he started out as a Freshman Congressman more than two years ago, we walked underground to Congress. A bell rang, making the school-like atmosphere even more pointed. That signalled the opening of Congress, and we sat down in the visitor's gallery, just as Democratic Congressman Helen Gahagan Douglas (wife of movie star, Melvyn Douglas) was being sworn in.

Soon after that, President Truman's budget report was brought to Representative Joe Martin. It was opened with much ceremony and one of the clerks began to read it. It was very long, very hard to understand on one hearing and there was so much else to see that we didn't stay very long, because the reading of the report was to occupy the rest of the House's day. Congressman get individual copies so they can study it later.

After lunch we took off for the Senate but the short session was over by the time we got there at about 2 p. m. From there Mr. McConnell helped me fulfill a life-long ambition—e. to ride in one of the Senate underground cars—on our way to visit Senators Martin and Myers. Both Pennsylvania Senators had left their offices for the day, however, so we had to be content with looking in on some of the other states' Senators.

All the while that we were wandering our way through the corridors of Congress I was asking questions and Mr. McConnell obligingly went back over his career to furnish me with the answer to "How did you get to be a politician?"

He was born in Eddystone, Pa., April 16, 1901, the son of a Methodist minister. He was brought up in a parsonage and between the ages of nine and 11 he lived in Ardmore, while his father, Samuel L. McConnell, Sr., was minister at the Ardmore Methodist Church.
In 1919 he graduated from Philadelphia's Northeast High School and in 1923 from Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania with a degree in Economics and Finance.

After his graduation he went into the investment business in New York and he is now associated with Thayer Baker and Company, Philadelphia investment brokers.

On the political side, he has always been interested in community affairs and he feels that the only "raison d'être" for the game of politics is to achieve community good. In fact, at one time during his college career he considered going into social service work.

In 1929 he and his wife (she was Helen Marple of West Philadelphia) and his daughter, Shirley, moved to 259 Trent Rd., Penn Wynne. It was at that time that he began to do a great deal of community work such as organizing the Penn Wynne Civic Association and being on the Board of Directors of the Penn Wynne Fire Company. He did a lot of other things, too, including spadework for the GOP as a committeeman for his district, and then he was made chairman of the Low-

Merion - Narberth Republican Committee

In 1942 he was elected to the Lower Merion Township Commission as a representative from the South Ardmore election district. He had to resign both his seat on the Commission and his chairmanship of the L.M.-Boro GOP Committee a year later when he was appointed to the House of Representatives to take the seat left by Bill Ditter's sudden death.

His ideas about government and politics could be labelled progressive with a conservative base. When he spoke of the new budget he said that "I think we should save money in every way possible. At the same time, we shouldn't forget that social reforms are a necessity and a public works program should be a part of any government plan."

When he spoke of his responsibility on the Labor Committee, he said that he felt "There must be unions, of course, but they should bear equal responsibility with management under the terms of the Wagner Act. I think if the Wagner Act should be expanded, not cut. One of the items it includes are civil liberties for employers as well as for labor leaders."

The thing he said which impressed me most was his statement that "Coercion on any side never works. I think the principal function of any government official or body should be to see to it that everyone works together with as much harmony as possible. That means that no one person or group can coerce another—it is only through mutual understanding of one another's problems that domestic or international peace can be established. I'm here to better that understanding in my particular field."

There were several other items of interest which Mr. McConnell told me. For instance, once a member of Congress, always a member of Congress—that is to say the privileges of the dining rooms and floors of Congress are always open to a former member of either house. Another thing is that there have been no more than ten thousand members of Congress since its first days in Philadelphia. The final thing I found out Friday was that our Congressman personally sees nearly every piece of mail sent him by his constituents.

Any way I look at it, Friday was a nice day for which I thank Mr. McConnell and his staff.

See you here next week—Bye for now...

The number of U. S. marriages in 1946 was approximately 35 percent higher than the number in 1942.

The mass was sung by Father James Farrell and was interpreted in sign language for Mrs. King who is deaf.

Mr. King, who was 50, died last Friday at his home, 418 C. St., N. E., Washington, after several years' illness. He moved to Washington seven years ago when he became a monotype operator for the Government Printing Office.

Lower Merion Invades Upper Darby; Norristown at Haverford Court Narberth Courtmen Tie For League Lead

Aces Triumph Over Cheltenham, 45-44; Ghosts Beat Fords Borough Team Jolts Clifton; L.M. Vets Bow

Narberth moved into a tie with Coatesville for first place in the Main Line League by defeating Clifton Heights, 58-49, on Monday night, while Wayne, the perennial league door-mat, rose up and smacked down third place Lower Merion Vets, 44-40, in a stunning upset on the Radnor High floor.

In winning their fourth straight victory, the Boroughites again came from behind. Clifton Heights held a 26-18 halftime edge, but, paced by Tom Davidson and little Harry Kelleher, former Green and Gold rallied to win. Davidson and Kelleher, former St. Joseph's College player, both notched 15 points. By this token, Davidson moved ahead of Markward in the league individual scoring race with 226 points.

The Vets, who have been playing grand ball during the past two weeks, lost to a Wayne team that had beaten Chester twice for its only league wins. The Ardmore five held a 24-16 lead at halftime, only to have some magnificent shooting by Al Ingber pull the Wayne side through. Ingber, a recent addition to the Wayne roster, led both teams in scoring with 17 points.

Markward, a permanent fixture in the Coatesville lineup for many years, was the main offensive threat in the Steel quintet, and his loss will be greatly felt by ed Vic Mardi to his Norristown roster. Mardi scored 112 points in 11 games for the Section One League teams.

In "B" league circles, the Ardmore Knights of Columbus took a half a game lead over West Manayunk and Phoenixville, by routing Paoli, 52-32, last Wednesday. Phoenixville, meanwhile, handed West Manayunk its second defeat, 35-30, at the Phoenixville Armory.

The Knights meet two strong foes this week. Tonight, they travel to Phoenixville, and a scoring duel between Jim Foley, Ardmore center, and Joe Osisek, Phoenixville forward, may develop. On next Wednesday night, the Knights play host to West Manayunk at the St. Katherine's floor in Wayne.

Coatesville continued to pace Section One league clubs, while Narberth drew up into a third place with an oil. The charges of Bob Tabor scored three straight wins, whipping Coatesville, Norristown, and Sun Oil in that order. Wayne, with decisions over Norristown and Chester, remained in second place.

Drivers Must Get Permits

New operators' licenses become valid January 15, but more than 1,000,000 Pennsylvania drivers have not applied for their 1947 licenses.

The deadline for obtaining new operators' licenses is midnight of January 31 and every driver who operates his car after that date without having a 1947 license is subject to arrest and fine.

Operators' license applications are not forwarded by the postal authorities which means that every operator who has moved during the past year must notify the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue of his change of address in order to get the new license application.

All drivers who have neglected to send in their operators' license applications, or who have not received them due to moving, are urged to mail them without further delay, or to notify the Department of Revenue at Harrisburg of any change in address.

HOW DO YOU GET SPRINGFIELD WATER?

FROM A TAP... of Course!

The traditional purity of Springfield water is not an accident. While your water is taken only from the purest streams free of pollution, we take it through a series of refining steps in order to bring it to our high standards. These steps include aeration, coagulation, precipitation and filtration.

Our modern filtration plants do a remarkable job in water treatment, making a good water better.

Pure Springfield water will always be on tap.

FLYING HANDS

Sometimes your telephone operator's hands move so quickly that she seems to have a dozen of them. And sometimes she wishes she had!

For at certain periods, so many calls flood the available switchboard equipment that the operator simply can't answer them all immediately, much as she'd like to do so.

As soon as we can obtain and install the new equipment that is on order, these once-in-a-while delays will be eliminated. Meanwhile, we know you'll understand.

Luther Parsons, 88-year-Old Blacksmith Recalls History of Horse-and-Buggy Days

THE BLACKSMITH SHOP of J. S. and L. C. Parsons stood at the corner of Montgomery and Parsons Aves. and Ford Rd., in Cynwyd. It was built in 1880 when Cynwyd was called Merionville. At the far left is Jacob Parsons, Luther's brother, who was the wheelwright of the company, which was handed down to the brothers by their father, Amos, who opened the shop in 1852.

DOROTHY M. OGDEN "I don't ever intend to get old," stated Luther Parsons, Lower Merion's 88-year-old retired blacksmith, as he reviewed the highlights of those 88 years, recently.

"A trip to North Carolina to attend a wedding last week and a few weeks of duck shooting in Maryland during the hunting season," bears out his statement.

"Going back a bit, Luther was born in his grandfather's house on Lancaster Pike just below Cricket Ave. in Ardmore. That house stood from 1730, when his maternal grandfather, Stephen Goodman, erected it after he emigrated to this country from Germany, until 1905 when the house was torn down to make way for a new house.

Stephen Goodman was a farmer on Red Arrow trolley station. He owned more than 300 acres of Lower Merion land. His cattle and dairy farm ran from the present site of the Penn Wynne School to Lower Merion High School and it wasn't broken up until the death of Parson's grandmother during the latter half of the 19th century.

Luther's father, Amos Parsons, was a blacksmith in Cynwyd. In 1852 he opened a smithy at the corner of Ford Rd. and Parsons Ave., which was named for the Parsons family. Shortly after he married Mary Ann Sibley. They lived at 800 Parsons Ave., a property which remained in the family until Luther sold it last year.

"I wanted to be a blacksmith from the time I can remember," Luther explains, "and after I left the Academy School at the age of 14, I went into the blacksmith shop with my father. The Academy School still stands behind the Bala-Cynwyd Junior High School. In those days, you know, Cynwyd was called Merionville and the section where the school was called Academyville.

"My brother, Jacob, came into business with me and when I was 22, father gave us the business. Jacob was the wheelwright and I was the carriage maker." Recalling some of the carriages he made for famous Mainliners, Parsons said:

"There was something about working with iron that I loved. First, we made wagons when the surrounding countryside was farmland. But when Lower Merion became more of a residential district we made carriages. I can remember making them for George B. Roberts when he was president of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was a cousin of Percival Roberts, Jr., you know. Then I made them for Frank Thompson when he was president of the Pennsylvania. Another man for whom I built carriages was William Wana-maker of Merion, who used them at the Devon Horse Show. I built carriages for John B. Thayer, Samuel Croft, Dr. John Lodge, Edward Scull and many others."

Luther married his childhood sweetheart, Katie Note, daughter of William Note, a carpenter, who lived just across the fields from the Parsons.

"I never wrote more than two letters to Katie in my life," Luther recalled. "If I had anything to say to her I just walked over. We went to school, Sunday School and church together all our lives. We had been married 56 years when she died several years ago."

They lived at 301 Parsons Ave.,

across the street from his father's home and the smithy, which were next door to each other. It was only last year that he sold both properties.

One reason that Luther Parsons will never get old is that he is interested in so many things. Board of Council of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Ardmore, for 65 years. On his mother's side of the family, there has been an For instance, he has been on the unbroken membership in that same church since 1765. His father was a member of Merion Meeting.

Another of his interests has been the Lower Merion Society for the Recovery of Stolen Horses and the Detection of Horse Thieves. He has been a member of that organization for 65 years and its president for 36.

Luther waxes eloquent when he speaks about the Society.

"It was started about 118 years ago because horses were so valuable in those days that some method had to be devised to safeguard them. Actually, when the Society was first formed it was known as the Lower Merion and Haverford Society. But in May 1853, a resolution was passed which divided the membership into two separate Societies to be known as the Haverford and Radnor Society and the Lower Merion Society. Afterwards most of the meetings were held at the General Wanyne Inn.

"Food at the banquets consisted of oysters fixed in many different ways. Oysters were a delicacy on the farms out around here and we still have oyster suppers at our annual banquets," Luther continued.

"The constitution of the Society carries many interesting old rules, such as 'anyone who makes an unnecessary noise by talking or otherwise, shall forfeit and pay a fine of 12 1/2 cents and there shall be no smoking of cigars during the business time of the meetings.'"

Actual provisions for the protection of horses were many. The Society was authorized to offer a reward of $30 for the recovery of a stolen horse and a further reward of $50 for the detection and conviction of the thief. A man who lost a horse was authorized to publish a notice to that effect six times in any four of the newspapers printed in the city or county of Philadelphia and three times in any two papers published in New York or Baltimore. He could also have 100 handbills printed and distributed wherever he wished and all of that expense, as well as the reimbursement for the loss of the horse was borne by the Society.

There are some interesting facts and some old Main Line names in the early records of the

For instance, the first record of money paid for the recovery of a horse was November 10, 1855 when $7.00 was paid to W. T. Boyd, for advertising for a stolen horse. Owners Joshua Ashbridge, David Jones and Nehemiah Evans received money for losing one horse each between 1861 and 1868.

At last year's meeting, held November 9, the menu included oysters on the half shell, oyster stew, scalloped oysters, fried oysters, besides chicken salad, roast turkey, potatoes, cranberry sauce, coffee, rolls, butter and condiments.

Luther Parsons acted as master of ceremonies and at the close of the meeting he proposed his own toast to the horse:

Here's to that bunch of sentient mews,
With the heart of a woman,
The eye of a gazelle,
The carriage of a gadaiator,
The docility of a slave,
The proud carriage of a king,
And the blind obedience of a soldier,
The companion of the desert plain,
That turns the moist furrow in the Spring,
In order that all the world
May have an abundant harvest,
That furnishes the sport of kings,
That with blazing eye and distended nostril
Fearlessly leads the greatest generals,
Through carnage and renown,
Whose blood forms one of the ingredients
That go to make the ink in which all
History is written, and who in black
Trappings pulls the proudest and humblest
To the newly soded threshold of Eternity.

Know Your State

Substantial progress was made during 1946 in the County Soil Conservation Program authorized at the last Session of the General Assembly.

The State's New Soil Conservation Act, signed by the Governor on May 15, 1945, authorized the Commissioners of each County in the Commonwealth to establish a County Soil Conservation District for the improvement of agricultural land and the control and prevention of erosion. To function under this Act, the County Commissioners appoint a Board of Directors, including one of their own number and four practical farmers selected from nominations made by county-wide agricultural associations. This Board can conduct soil surveys, employ personnel, and carry out erosion control measures with the consent of the owners of the land. They have the power to acquire and dispose of land and to purchase necessary equipment.

The State Soil Conservation Commission is authorized to provide aid and advice to the County Districts and to apportion among them any funds allotted from State or Federal sources.

Eight counties — Allegheny, Berks, Clinton, Fulton, Jefferson, Lehigh, Potter and Tioga have already formed Soil Conservation Districts under this new law. In addition, Clarion County, which has been functioning as one of the six local Soil Conservation Districts—operating under an earlier law, has been reorganized as a County District.

Parallel with these promising developments for the future of Pennsylvania's vital food supply are the many erosion control demonstrations being conducted throughout the State by the County Agricultural Agents who operate under the direction of the Agricultural Extension Service of the Pennsylvania State College.

With the intense interest in all forms of conservation shown by Governor-elect J. H. Duff, it is to be expected that 1947 will be marked by the formation of many more County Soil Conservation Districts throughout the agricultural areas of the State.

In several large cities old and obsolete street cars are being converted into residences. This makes "The Trolley Song," we presume, the official 1946 version of "Home, Sweet Home."

Set '47 Goal For Red Cross

$2,490,000 Quota Is One Million Under Last Year

A goal of $2,490,000 for the 1947 Red Cross Fund Campaign, Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter, was announced this week by Benjamin Rush, Jr., chapter chairman.

The announcement was made at the Midday Club. Membership of the committee comprises leaders in the business, professional, educational and industrial life of Philadelphia and the suburbs.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, Rush and the 1947 Fund Chairman, Brig. Gen. Brenton G. Wallace, received pledges of support from the committee.

General Wallace, who served on the staff of the late Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., explained that of the $2,490,000, the chapter would retain $1,450,000 to finance the work of its extensive program scheduled throughout its five-county area. The chapter's contribution to National Red Cross activities this year has been set at $1,040,000, he said.

The chapter's quota, representing a decrease of 27 percent or nearly $1,000,000 under last year's goal of $3,490,000, will be used to finance Red Cross programs principally in aiding servicemen," Wallace said.

"That means," he added, "the occupation forces overseas and hospitalized G. I.s, veterans and their families. In addition, such Red Cross services to the civilian public as disaster relief, nursing activities, first aid and water safety, also are budgeted for the coming year."

Wallace said the national Red Cross budget for 1947-48 actually is $92,000,000. However, he explained that the national goal will be only $60,000,000, with the difference to be supplied from reserves resulting from previously oversubscribed drives.

"The Red Cross program this year is immeasurably greater in scope than it was after the First World War," Wallace said.

"As we get further and further away from V-J Day, the glamour of aiding our servicemen and veterans is wearing thin," he went on. "But the end of glamour roles doesn't spell the end of the need to continue this job which only Red Cross is so efficiently organized to handle."

Wallace said that "we all knew Red Cross was an outstandingly successful wartime agency. 'But,' he added, 'we must remember also that Red Cross is not alone a wartime agency. It must continue to make its contributions to a world now seeking to re-establish peace."

Unfortunately, the world is beset by hunger, sickness and deprivation," he said. "The one vast agency throughout the world which never must leave the side of those who suffer is Red Cross. 'There must never be a blackout on kindness,' he said.

Easter Seal Contest Open to H. S. Students

Any pupil in art classes in high schools in the State is eligible to enter the contest for the design of the 1948 Easter Seal for Crippled Children.

This was announced this week by Wesley A. Gilman, president of the Metropolitan-Philadelphia Society for Crippled Children which is sponsoring the contest here. The contest will continue until March 11.

The winner will be entered in the national contest for the Michael J. Dowling Award.

When the heart speaks, however simple the words, its language is always acceptable to those who have hearts.—Mary Baker Eddy.

"I'll be fired for that fool story!"

The managing editor of the New York Herald took a day off on December 21, 1879. So this headline in his paper hit him without warning.

EDISON'S LIGHT— IT MAKES A LIGHT, WITHOUT GAS OR FLAME!

The public promptly shouted "hoax!" Scientists called Edison crazy. And our shocked, angry editor expected to be fired. But he wasn't. Eleven days later, Thomas Edison held a unique New Year's party in his laboratory at Menlo Park, New Jersey, and invited the world to see his "flameless light." Thousands came and were convinced.

Soon small companies were bringing the benefits of Edison's newfangled lamp to the people. Engineers and business men poured in their energy and time . . . risked their own savings . . . overcame all kinds of obstacles . . . broadened and improved the service.

Government didn't do the job. Individuals did. And in the process, they created jobs for many thousands of Americans, as well as a great new service for many millions more.

When Edison opened the first power-plant in 1882, electricity cost 25¢ a kilowatt-hour. This year, the 100th anniversary of the inventor's birth, the average price of household electricity across the country is only 3 1/3¢ per kilowatt-hour.

Thanks to Edison's imagination and enterprise—thanks to the courage and initiative of many men and women, working under the American business system—this country enjoys the most and best electric service in the world. And all our lives are richer, safer, more productive.
